Southern Regional Chapter
Korean American Scholarship Foundation

Welcome everyone to the 29th annual Korean American Scholarship Foundation Banquet. For more than 50 years, KASF has provided scholarships to thousands of students nationwide who are in pursuit of their dreams. For the last 29 years, the Southern Regional Chapter has served the Southern regions of the United States.

First, I would like to acknowledge all the donors and supporters who make this scholarship possible for our students. I would also like to honor the Board of Directors, Charter Members, and volunteers who make this foundation possible. Everyone, please give them a round of an applause.

I would also like to recognize the parents and loved ones of our recipients who continually support these young men and women with their sacrifices and most importantly, love. Please stand and everyone give them a round of applause.

On behalf of the foundation, I would like to acknowledge all our recipients at this time for your achievement. You all passed a rigorous application cycle to get to this point. You have proven yourselves to be exceptional candidates. You have earned it. May you use your extraordinary talents and qualities for the betterment of the world, pursuit of your passions, and as inspiration for future generations. Please give them a warm round of applause for this milestone.

Everyone, please enjoy tonight's festivities, along with our honored keynote speaker.

Thank you.

Chairman's Message

Frank N. Lee
Chairman

National Board of Directors
Korean American Scholarship Foundation

On behalf of the Korean American Scholarship Foundation National Board of Directors, tonight I would like to congratulate all of our scholarship award recipients. I would also like to congratulate the Southern Regional Chapter, its Presidents, officers, board members, donors, volunteers, and sponsors who made this Awards Ceremony a resounding success.

As we celebrate KASF's 50th year in existence, let me quote one of the founding members:

"On December 5, 1968, the Korean Students Association of Washington, D.C. held a fundraising concert and raised $325.00 in order to establish a scholarship foundation for struggling Korean students in America… From that humble amount of money was the seed which was planted and grew to become the Korean American Scholarship Foundation." (excerpt from the book "KASF 40 Years")

When KASF was formed 50 years ago, there were very few Korean-Americans living in the United States. Initially, KASF assisted Korean students studying at American undergraduate and graduate programs. As time went on, more Koreans emigrated to the US with their families, became permanent residents, and eventually US citizens. As a result, there was an explosion of 1st, 1.5 and 2nd generation Korean-Americans attending colleges in the 1980's.

In 1985, KASF became a national organization when it established the Western Regional Chapter with an office in Los Angeles, California. Now we have seven Regional Chapters with offices in Vienna, Los Angeles, Atlanta, New York City, Chicago, Houston and Denver.

As of today, KASF has raised over $4M for its chair scholarship endowment fund. The investment returns from the endowment fund and our annual regional fundraisers have permitted KASF to award $450,000 to 250 students in 2018. In total, KASF has awarded over $10M dollars in scholarships to over 6,500 students across the United States. The primary mission of KASF's is to solicit, evaluate, select and award scholarships in the range of $500 - $5,000 to qualified students based on their financial need, academic achievement, and a desire to serve the Korean-American community in the future.

In July 2019, KASF hired its first paid, full time Executive Director, Ms. Eun Jeong Lee, Ph.D.

To the officers, board members, donors, volunteers, and sponsors of SRC:
KASF congratulates your service of organizing fundraising events such as golf tournaments and concerts, creating social mixers to encourage younger people to get involved with KASF, and being in attendance apt this Award Banquet to recognize the scholarship students.

To the students:
You are truly both the present and future of the Korean-American presence in this country. KASF is proud to partner with you as you strive to create a world where you and your peers can thrive in your respective fields. Keep up the great work and one day when you are able, please help another student achieve his or her dreams.

To everyone:
I truly believe the torch that was lit in 1969 by the visionary founders of KASF will continue to be carried by us for the betterment of the students we are honoring tonight and the students in the years to come.
Thank you again for all your support and we look forward to seeing you again next year.

Importance of persistence in overcoming obstacles in everyday life.

We all face obstacles that only that we know about. Sometimes we don't feel comfortable sharing it, and sometimes we judge others when we don't know the obstacles that other people are facing alongside us. It's important to find the people that you trust and that you look up to: whether it is a mentor or a friend that inspires you to do your best. Not that there is any one perfect person who has it all together: there isn't. It is important to learn from the examples set by others and to have a modest heart that lets you take their example, acknowledge where you fall short, and strive for improvement.

It can be intimidating, but it is fundamental to achieving successful outcomes: in school, in your career, in your personal relationships and your friendships.

Claire Debra Lim started her practice in the fall of 2005 with a focus on residential and commercial real estate transactions, business closings, SBA loans, and civil litigation. She graduated from Emory University in 2001 and Syracuse University College of Law in 2005. She is admitted to practice before the State Bar of Georgia, Court of Appeals of Georgia, and Supreme Court of Georgia and the State of Alabama. She is a member of the State Bar of Georgia and the Gwinnett County Bar Association. She has received awards from the Korean-American Association of Greater Atlanta and the Georgia Korean-American Real Estate Association for her contribution of legal services to the Korean-American community in Atlanta, and has served as a Director of the Intercontinental Foundation (Non-Profit Organization). Her and her husband, Joseph, have two children, Madeleine, 11 and Andy, 9, and a dog, Samantha, 4.

My grandfather Lawrence Schadler passed away at the age of 90 over a year ago on February 14, 2018. He was quite a character. He never graduated middle school or even high school because he had to work on the farm to help his mom feed his family of five sisters. My grandfather entered the Korean War in 1950 which changed his life forever. His army troop landed in hostile territory and on the second day they became trapped up on a hill with no escape from the enemy. The group was then escorted to the POW camp where they remained captive for 27 long months. It is these POW stories that impacted our family in that we got to know what courage really means by being told what went on behind enemy lines.

I grew up hearing many stories from my grandfather Lawrence about the Korean War. He would start to cry as he remembered the terrible acts of war that he had to endure for our country and South Korea. One such story of courage was when my grandfather was face down, spread eagle on the ground at the POW camp, when a North Korean solider who just happened to find a small hand pistol and decided to "try it out". The pistol worked two times before my grandfather felt the cold metal of the pistol at the back of his head. When the solider pulled the trigger, the gun did not fire. This to me is courageous as he picked himself up and kept going.

Another way the Korean War impacted our family can be seen when one night at a Hibachi restaurant when my grandfather had a little too much to drink. I remember him acting a little weird. He started sobbing about how the long Korean War lasted and that so many people were killed and wounded. He then looked at the waiter and asked him "where did you learn to speak English?". The waiter was a cool sort and simply answered "McDonalds". We all laughed a sigh of relief.

One more story of courage I was told by my grandfather was about a baby chick that he found running around the POW camp. The American soldiers decided to keep this chick and kept it hidden day and night as they worked together to protect it. If they got caught, they would have been killed on the spot. Through sheer courage by these soldiers this baby chick grew up into an adult chicken. One freezing Korean night one of the soldiers left the chicken outside all night. The next morning, they awoke to find this chicken had one leg that had frost bite. They figured out how to amputate the leg and made an apparatus that acted like a prosthetic leg. The chicken adapted to this new leg and survived. The war ended and the soldiers left that chicken in the POW camp. This chicken was symbolic in that it gave the soldiers the courage to keep it alive and the desire to live.

The Korean War in a nut shell impacted our family to understand that courageousness comes directly from God and is like faith in that you cannot exactly see the outcome, but you just know in your heart what you must do. The soldiers of America are courageous in this capacity as they endure many challenges day in and day out as they protect our country to allow freedom, honor and peace.

Finally, my grandfather served and was captured as a POW in the Korean War on May 19, 1951 and released on August 17, 1953. He told me that the Chinese soldiers were the ones who brought medicine to try to help the sick. In fact, he was given moth balls for Hepatitis A, it worked. My grandpa was shot several places, starved to 90 pounds, had to carry full length tree trunks uphill or get shot, got frost bite of both feet to name a few issues. But even with this suffering he never lost his American desire for all people to have freedom regardless of the cost. These Korean War stories and what the American soldiers had to endure is real courage and will always impact me in everything I do.

Warning: DO NOT swim in the Mobile Bay! HUMAN RISK: infection with Vibrio vulnificus, a flesh-eating bacteria, after swimming or ingesting oysters from the bay. Upon hearing about the unfortunate accounts of amputations and deaths, I devoted one-and-a-half years to testing when and where these bacteria were appearing by developing a more effective and updated technique. My method uses DNA extraction, then leverages primers and PCR to determine bacterial origins. The results from my methodology can inform the FDA when to shut down fisheries and ban recreational use of the bay. With this project, I had the honor of attending the Intel International Science and Engineering Fair and mingled with bright minds from all over the world. I helped my community and grew as an aspiring scientist.

Science has always answered my incessantly curious brain. Biology has been a captivating presence in my life ever since I learned the process of photosynthesis. From there, I've pursued my passion for science and never looked back. By the end of my junior year in high school, I achieved the recognition of a "concentration with distinction" in biology (6 classes beyond the graduation requirement).

The world is filled with remarkable knowledge; the more I know, the hungrier I become. While attending Emory University, I have continued to pursue my strong interests in science through a major in Neuroscience and Behavioral Biology. Through this study I have been able to work in a research lab where I perform blood and cerebrospinal fluid processing and clinical work in Alzheimer's Disease research.

Although this is quite a long introduction to my first adjective that best describes me, I wanted to display the intensity of passion that I have for science; furthermore, one of the adjectives that best describes me is PASSIONATE.

My second adjective stems from a different aspect. One summer, I decided to make more use of my time and researched volunteer opportunities in the area of Atlanta. As a result, I found a music therapy center looking for interns to help children with disabilities learn music in order to improve their social and mental skills and abilities. On the first day of work, I was assigned to a 12-year old boy, Sam, diagnosed with cerebral palsy and autism. My job was to teach him the piano keys and help the music therapist with bongo classes. As I worked with him, I came to realize his love and passion for the melodic notes that we listened to everyday.

One sunny afternoon, we listened to Beethoven's "Für Elise" while eating peanut-butter and jelly sandwiches on a picnic blanket. After the day was over, Sam wanted to play the piano while we waited for his mother to pick him up, so we headed back to the music room. He plopped down onto the bench, played a couple of random notes for a few minutes, and then closed his eyes.

My jaw dropped and eyes widened as he played the beginning notes of Beethoven's classical piece after hearing it twice that day! I brought other music therapists into the room, and everyone pulled out their phones to record his phenomenal performance while the kids watched him in awe. What caught my attention were his facial expressions and emotions responding to the music. With his eyes closed, he swayed with the melody as if he were part of the ballet of notes. He was playing for the enjoyment of a thousand notes become a part of his being— It was him and the music. Everything else floated away.

Through Sam, I got out of my science head and landed in a world of a little boy-- full of dissonance and confusion until he sat down at a piano. Music is said to be a universal language, and in that moment, Sam was talking to us all and we listened. This experience has allowed me to expand my horizons in my academics, as well as make me into a more well-rounded person. Not only will this memory be forever ingrained into my brain, I decided to go into the music field and connect it to my Alzheimer's Disease research. In the near future, my research lab will be working on how the arts and music is beneficial to the quality of life for Alzheimer's patients.

As a double major in neuroscience and music, I find it important to find connections between varying subjects and creating something big. Something new! My second adjective that I would use to best describe myself is UNIQUE. Not in terms of being different from everyone else, because everyone is individualistic in their own way, but in terms of myself seeking uniqueness in an interdisciplinary aspect. I seek collaboration and diversity in all forms and functions of life, not just in regards to academics.

Goals

The Korean American Scholarship Foundation seeks 1) to assist Korean American Students in the U.S.A. and students abroad with Korean heritage in pursuit of academic and personal achievement, 2) to encourage community and civic services as an integral part of leadership development, and 3) to nurture the sense of pride and confidence in Korean cultural, heritage, and tradition.

Background

Founded in 1969 by a small group of concerned individuals in Washington D.C., KASF began as a local organization with limited focus and funding sources. However, with the dramatic growth of Korean immigrant communities in the U.S., KASF has extended to include all 50 states of the U.S.A.

During the past years, KASF has been able to build an endowment fund of over 4 million dollars as of today through the generous support of both Korean and American corporations as well as individual donors. Each year, KASF has been able to offer scholarship opportunities to an increasing number of students, the number of KASF scholarship recipients has grown to be over 7,000 not including this year's recipients.

Organization Structure

The Korean American Scholarship Foundation is a national organization with separate regional offices in Washington D.C., Los Angeles, Atlanta, Chicago, New York Detroit, and Houston In order to better service the fast growing number of Korean American students nationwide, KASF established a national executive board composed of representatives from each of the regions in 1989.
